

Board of Trade Financial Report of Press Visit

President George Matthews, of the Board of Trade, in a short address made the following remarks:

"We have had no meeting since the visit of the Imperial Press for Gleichen, and that was to Mr. W. Park Evans. (Applause.) Some six months ago, when Mr. Evans came into no office to advise me he thought it possible to have the press representatives stop here, I told him I certainly would like the boys and girls to see the publicity through their visit that we would get in no other way, and then we could be induced to stop I would give all the time that was necessary to help complete any arrangements that would be made to entertain them while here. But men, in committee form, I had not the least thought that Mr. Evans would be able to induce the Central Committee to stop to this date.

"Your executive were immediately called together and a formal invitation was sent to the Central Committee, through Mr. Evans, and very shortly you were advised that he had been successful in having the special train stop from seven until twelve o'clock.

"You will doubtless recall that, the responsibility of all arrangements to the following committee: Messrs. Hatchburn, Culbert, Gooderham, W. W. Brown, Park Evans and you present.

"It would be impossible to report to you the number of times this committee met, but at their first meeting the following sub-committees were appointed: Program committee: W. F. Evans, Chairman; Finance: Messrs. Gooderham, Culbert, Gooderham, W. W. Brown, Park Evans and you present. The many requests for the program in the district and the program of the day in the district were the result of our guests' participation of the work of this committee.

"The Reception Committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Matthews and W. F. Scott, who enlarged the committee in the following: Messrs. Gooderham, Culbert, Gooderham, W. W. Brown, Park Evans and you present.

"The Reception Committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Matthews, E. Taylor, W. W. Brown, and Mr. Malloy as chairman of that committee. I want to state that the exceptional manner in which every detail was carried out made possible your committee being able to carry out all arrangements without a single hitch, and I wish to congratulate you, Mr. Malloy, on your committee's excellent work. (Applause.)

"Our Staff Committee, with Mr. G. Gooderham as chairman, arranged with the Stagnate Committee, whose personnel has already appeared several times in your local paper, to put on the morning performance, which was done most acceptably to our guests. The Indian entertainment proved a very novel feature, and as Lord Burman remarked in Calgary, a memory which they shall never forget.

"We then discovered we had to have a finance committee, and we naturally appointed Messrs. Culbert and Hatchburn. They were asked to raise $250 at first, but we found we would need $250, and they accepted the responsibility of raising this amount just as cheerfully as they did the $250, and by the way, secured this amount.

"Last Monday morning the committee held a meeting to see to it that where we were, and we discovered that we were yet short some $125. The accounts, however, were paid by these gentlemen so that all accounts should be closed promptly. On Monday morning from Edmonton had returned this Finance Committee informed me that they had made another effort and secured ample funds to make up this deficit. Gentlemen, this magnificent work was not secured by these men sitting in their offices, they had to go

GLEICHEN SCHOOL FAIR SPORTS SATURDAY, OCT. 9

An excellent programme of school sports has been arranged for the children's fair on October 9th. Many of the events are between the different schools, and the merits of the various schools are under much discussion by the school children of the neighbourhood.

Dark rumors that the local Indian school have a heavyweight team on the tug-of-war are confounded by reports from Standard that the boys of that village could pull a team of elephants. However, the afternoon of the 9th of October will decide the matter. The children of the various schools are to assemble in the public school yard at 1:30, under the charge of their teachers and march to the Agricultural grounds in time to commence the sports at 2 o'clock.

At the Agricultural ground the public will occupy the grand stand and keep off the track. Special arrangements are being made in order that this can be done. The children will occupy the centre of the grounds in charge of their teachers and the sports committee, who are making great efforts to obtain an announcer that can be heard all over the ground.

The following is the revised list in the order in which they will be pulled off:

1. Boys' running race, age 13 and over—100 yards.
2. Boys' running race, age 10 to 13—75 yards.

24. Girls' potato race, any age—25 yards.
25. Boys' obstacle race, any age—100 yards.
26. Boys' bicycle race, any age—1/4 mile.
27. Boys' bicycle race, any age—1/4 mile.
28. Girls' needle-threading race—50 yards.
29. Boys' to hold the needle; girls to run and thread needles and run back again.
30. Boys' 1/2 mile running race, any age.
31. Boys' long jump, 13 and under.
32. Boys' long jump, 11 and over.
33. Boys' long jump, 13 and under.
34. Boys' long jump, 11 and over.
35. Tug-of-war.
36. Girls' horse race—1/2 mile.
37. Boys' horse race—1/2 mile.

The above list should satisfy most children for one afternoon, and the sports committee will have all they can do to handle the afternoon programme in good time. Before the day is over they will have every child kept carefully over the above list and decide upon what they intend to enter for, so that they will not delay the afternoon's programme.

The committee in Gleichen have not been able to get into touch with the country districts as much as they would like, but this is doubtless on account of the harvest and threshing; and they have made all the arrangements as far as possible and look for a good crowd from all the rural districts. It is the first school fair held in the district and everyone should turn out to make it a success.

An Important Notice to Cattle Shippers

The following important notice is contained inside the 1920 range area as sent out by the secretary of the stock Growers Protective Association:

All cattle from the above area intended for shipment to the United States require a district health certificate.

Before such certificate will be issued the animals will be carefully inspected by an official veterinarian. Dealers and ranchers who contemplate shipping to the United States should give notice of such intention at least three days prior to the date of shipment to the official veterinarian for the district in which the point of shipment is located.

Ranchers whose headquarters are outside the 1920 range area should exercise extreme care in purchasing cattle from inside of such area, because if range should break out amongst animals on the range from which these newly purchased cattle came, the cattle could fall away from the purchaser's own herd might be quarantined on suspicion of contact.

Consignments of cattle not accompanied by a district health certificate will not be admitted by the American authorities into the United States. It must be borne in mind that this is an American and not a Canadian regulation.

A fee of 25 cents per head will be charged for these district health certificates up to eight head. The maximum fee for any health certificate is $2 for any one shipment.

Information regarding the inspector who is authorized to issue a district certificate for any given locality will be supplied by Dr. J. C. Hargrave, at Medicine Hat, Alberta, or the Stock Yards, Calgary, and W. F. Evans, Secretary of the Stock Growers Protective Association, Calgary.

Navy League Campaign

The Navy League of Canada is arranging for a general appeal for funds to assist in their work throughout Canada during the month of October.

Already over 500 committees have been arranged for in Alberta. The work will be in charge of J. A. Irvine, assisted by Capt. Harper, of Toronto, who is coming west to help in the province of Alberta. It is also expected that Admiral Beattie will address a number of meetings in the West in the month of October.

The Navy League has already done much work not only in Canada but overseas. Their work for boys through the Naval Brigade is increasing by leaps and bounds; this year between five and six thousand boys attend special outings and instructions. In Alberta over 1200 have been privileged to attend the summer camp at Sylvia Lake, and the good effected by the boys cannot be estimated.

The League is erecting a new sailor home at Halifax, N.S., costing over $250,000; Prince Edward Island, $100,000; Nova Scotia, $100,000; N.S. $25,000. A grant was given the Montreal Institute of $10,000; the Catholic Home at Montreal, $8,000; Seamen's Institute, St. John, N.B., $10,000; Catholic Sailors' Home, Quebec City, $10,000; Lincolnton Hotel for Merchant Sailors, Surrey, England, $20,000; Dr. Greenhill's Mission, Labrador, $5,000; Royal Arthur Institute, Port Arthur, $10,000; Seamen's Mission, St. John, N.B., $5,000; Merchant Sailors' Rest, Malta, $2,500.

Other grants given for various men's relief work—Navy League in London for general work, $8,750; King George's Fund for Sailors, $115,125; Navy League Overseas Relief Fund, $172,000; Navy League Overseas Relief Fund, $12,500; grant to the families of the sailors in the "Princess Sophia" disaster, $5,000; Princess of Wales Fund, $15,000; and besides all this a considerable sum was spent by the Navy League in the war years. Between 80 and 100,000 of the work amongst the boys of the war were killed during the war are needing educational advantages through the work of the League.

This work needing attention to every man, woman and child in the province. Gleichen has only been asked to contribute the sum of $100, and this amount should be easily raised. The following letter committee have been asked to assist: A. R. Thibault, chair, W. D. O'Brien, Dr. H. H. Hargrave, R. H. Hargrave, Mr. McLean, W. P. Evans, and J. Beach.

Jim Davidson, president of the Alberta Golf Roads Association, and W. H. Hargrave, president of the Calgary Municipality to attend the Board of Trade Meeting.

Both gentlemen gave addresses, Mr. Davidson's address being "The Importance of Golf to the Province" and given at the luncheon, and will be given some space in these columns.

Born on Wednesday, September 29th, to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Harris, a daughter.

The Personal Side

PROMINENT WESTERN CHARACTERS—SOME INTERESTING ANECDOTES OF PEOPLE

ALEXANDER GADDIE

There was a notable half breed who used to live at Crooked Lakes named Alexander Gaddie. He was of sturdy Ojibwa stock on his father's side which furnished so many good men to the service of the Hudson's Bay Company, and when he talked English he had a pronounced Keweenaw accent. On the maternal side he was of Indian blood, native to the region. Although an exceedingly intelligent man his sympathies were always with the people of his mother's race and he took treaty at Crooked Lakes as an Indian. He had an allotment on the reserve and was one of the first of the Indians to achieve success in farming. He had been a notable buffalo hunter and Indian fighter in the early days, and had earned a reputation for coolness and courage in some of the battles which the Metis fought with the Sioux. One of his daughters, an exceedingly attractive girl, married a white man and the writer was present at the wedding feast which took place at Gaddie's house on the Crooked Lakes. It was a strange gathering that sat down at the table. Colonel MacDonald, a veteran of the Wolseley campaign, and who was later Indian agent for Treaty No. 6, was the guest of honor, and several members of his family. The other Indian Department officials were present, and there were several other white people. Interspersed with these were all the Indian notables. Kahkikewinash, the old chief of the Crooked Lake Indians, who was one of the signers of the Qu'Appelle Treaty, although eighty years of age was a splendid figure of a man, and notable amongst the guests. Neapahpene, who has been called by some of those best qualified to judge Indian conditions, as the finest Indian of his day, comforted himself with quiet dignity and there were a number of prominent Indians from the nearby reserves. The health of the bride was proposed by Colonel MacDonald, and there were a number of speeches in English. At last Gaddie got to his feet and said in perfect English:

"I want to thank Colonel MacDonald and the white men who have spoken, for their kind words and I wish them not to take offense if I now talk to my own people." He then made an eloquent speech in Cree, in which he urged upon the half breed guests to accept the wisdom of the white man and to follow along his trail.

Gaddie had a son called "Jimmy" who was inclined to be rather wild. He got into bad company and started out with another half breed named Rector and a homebred expedition. They stole some horses from a rancher in the Qu'Appelle Valley named McLeish, and McLeish, with a mounted policeman, rode hard on their trail. The desperadoes upon the half breeds arousing in a slack and McLeish followed by the policeman, attempted to force an entrance. A fight occurred, a gun was fired and McLeish fell mortally wounded, while the mounted policeman was badly hurt. Gaddie and Rector fled to the broken land near the Qu'Appelle Valley on the Crooked Lakes, and for a long time successfully evaded capture. They were eventually taken, however, and after a trial at Regina were sentenced to death.

If old Gaddie was exercised over this affair he showed no signs of perturbation. He went calmly about his daily vocations. One day Colonel MacDonald, on receipt of news from Regina, drove over to Gaddie's place and found him busy about the house. He said, "Gaddie, I am the messenger of bad news. Your boy Jimmy is to be hanged in Regina in a few days."

"Too bad, Colonel," said Gaddie, "but Jimmy was always a bad boy; you will come out and look at my wealth?" Nevertheless the old man was at the foot of the scaffold to receive the body of his executed son.

Alexander Gaddie has not been long dead. He was a typical plainsman of the old breed. Honest, intelligent and reliable; brave as a lion in the face of danger and full of patriotic sentiment for his own country and his own people, he was a good example of the race of the old time plainsman, most of whom have now passed away.

A CHIEF AMONGST THESE PEOPLE

There was a splendid Saulteaux Indian of the Crooked Lakes Agency who bore the name of O'Soup. He was a tall, stalwart, warlike man and he carried himself like an Indian King. I was, I think, one of the most dignified men in the world, and his eye beamed with intelligence and energy. He was a great hunter and never settled down to farming pursuits so much encouraged by the Indian Department. Even after the advent of the railways he would make long hunting excursions to the remotest part of the country, seeming to delight in life in the wilderness.

Sir Richard Lake, the present Lieut. Governor of the province of Saskatchewan, relates an incident, slight in itself, but very significant in connection with this man.

The two half breed murderers, Gaddie and Rector, had been arrested charged with the murder of the Qu'Appelle Valley rancher, named McLeish. Sir Richard was then a young man and had just received his commission as Justice of the Peace. He was one of the magistrates before whom the accused were brought. He relates how O'Soup was called to the witness stand and asked through an interpreter if he was a leader among the Indians. The court room was crowded with interested Indian spectators and O'Soup drew himself up, and with a gesture of indescribable dignity towards the Indians, said, "Yes, I am a chief amongst these people."

He had, however, one fault, he was rather addicted to the "fire water" of the white man and on one occasion, not so many years ago, allowed it to get so much the better of him that he lay out in very cold weather, with the result that he lost the use of one of his legs, which, if the writer is not mistaken, had to be amputated. He was at that time living some place near Fort Qu'Appelle and he was taken to his home in Crooked Lakes. The Indian Agent did not think it well for him, in his feeble condition, to take the journey, and permission was refused. He went into the bush and with his axe, constructed a mud crutch and started out on his journey. Yes, however, followed and brought back. He died not so many years ago. He was one of the Indians from the west who was present at the consecration of the late Archbishop Langevin at St. Boniface and made a speech there in which he said that the agreement with the Cree language declared was a masterpiece of studied eloquence.

HOW RIEL NEARLY ESCAPED THE GALLOWES

It is now pretty well known that the late Sir John Macdonald was very reluctant to have Louis Riel hanged. There was, of course, a strong feeling against the rebel leader in the west. He had been guilty of treason and his making was against the government of Canada; but the Metis themselves, although vigorous and enterprising fighters, had carried on the war with a fairly decent regard to the amenities. Indeed on many occasions they had intervened to curb the barbarities of their Indian allies. Of course Riel's great offence was in having evoked the aid of the Indians, and thus exposing the country to the horrors of an Indian uprising. There was no doubt that the halfbreeds had many real grievances and that Ottawa had long turned a deaf ear to them. Quebec was aroused in their favor, and Laurier, in the House of Commons, had made a passionate and eloquent plea in their behalf.

Sir John was naturally inclined to clemency but the opposition practically dared him to hang Riel.

At the time for the execution approached, a plan was evolved to enable Riel to escape, which was said to have been conceived at by the authorities.

There was a well known French-Canadian named Pascal Bonneau living in Regina at the time. He was a strong political supporter of the government, and he had little sympathy with the rebellion. He knew Riel well, however, and had some sympathy with his miserable condition.

It was arranged that a few days before the date set for the execution he was to establish relays of fast horses every ten miles between Regina and the American boundary; arrangements were to be made to get Riel out of the Regina police barracks; he was given half an hour to start not all the police in the country could catch him before he reached United States, where as a political offender he would be safe.

All arrangements were made, but the plan was disclosed by a relative of the unfortunate rebel leader, who was himself in some danger for his share in the rebellion, and who doubtless sought to obtain favor from the authorities. So Riel went to his ignominious death.

After the execution the body was taken to the Roman Catholic church, which at that time was situated on the present site of the Credit Foncier Building.

It was prepared for burial by Mr. Bonneau, and W. G. Pettengill, still a well known business man of the provincial capital. Mr. Pettengill told the writer a few days ago that after the work was done and the body interred in a shallow grave beneath the floor of the church, he and Mr. Bonneau adjourned to the Palmer House bar to seek a little quietude. Mr. Bonneau drained his glass, he said, "I wish I were as sure of salvation as he is now."

Riel's remains rested in the church for several days under the constant guardianship of Mr. Bonneau's son. At last one snowy night he received word to remove it to a box car that was to be left on the siding east of Broad Street. Care had to be exercised because local feeling was much inflamed against the dead man and there was reason to anticipate a demonstration.

Young Bonneau waited until it was quite dark, then he dug up Riel's body and taking it on his back, plodded out in the snow through what is now Victoria Park, and going by the out-

Working Through College

Educating a girl at one of the big colleges for women used to mean a long drain on the family treasury. In almost every case it has meant so many deprivations for father and mother, little brothers and sisters, or less talented and ambitious members of the family that some girls have given up the hope of going to college. The need need not be. A girl can now work her way through college without losing any of the prestige or fun that she would enjoy if she had the fortune of a big bank account. In fact, since the war made work fashionable, working one's way through college is regarded as a clever achievement rather than a hardship, and scores of girls are doing it.

The typewriter machine is a good friend to many ambitious girls. There is always plenty of copying to be done around a college. It is said that about ten per cent. of the girls attending colleges aspire to the Muses. Typing their verses and stories in addition to their less artistic efforts provides much work for the girl who has a typewriter and can operate it.

The faculty of a college too will often supply a girl who is working her way through, with a considerable amount of extra work. Small business concerns that have not a sufficient amount of work to employ a regular stenographer are glad to avail themselves of the services of an occasional typist.

Help is hard to get in college kitchens as in the kitchens at home, and the girl who can and will adapt herself to this kind of work, will have little difficulty to find opportunities. To girls studying dietetics and certain branches of chemistry this work may be especially helpful.

Waiting on table in the college has long been recognized as a legitimate and effective means of supplying a girl with physical food while she feeds her mind. Any girl who is capable of this kind of work is readily available. Tea rooms, restaurants and cafeterias offer a growing field which un-skits of the town, reached the box car, where he laid the earthly remains of that restless spirit upon some straw. When the express came along it picked up the car. The young man maintained his vigil all the way to Winnipeg.

The last resting place of Louis Riel is in the cemetery of the Cathedral at St. Boniface, on the banks of the Red River, and is marked by a stone monument upon which is engraved the simple inscription "Riel."

study of individual styles in hair dressing, guaranteeing to suit the coiffure to the particular type of beauty represented by her customer. This girl adds to her art of hair dressing the manufacture of hair tonic, and a preparation, the use of which, insures a more or less, permanent wave to the tresses. This preparation is especially popular among the girls for whom straight hair is by the editor of the hair artist taboo, as the "permanent wave" comes away with perpetual waving.

Three girls went into partnership making ladies' blouses and fine underwear in order to make their way through college. Their business grew to such an extent that they found it advisable to open a little shop. They now employ two other women, and have added to their venture the making of children's clothing, specializing on infants' outfits. So the girls of the future are always a source of revenue to a clever college girl and may be undertaken in addition to any of the many other ways of earning money.

Apparently "age cannot wither" the ambition of some women. A woman who had always longed for an education, found herself at the age of forty, without tea, money, or any special talent that she knew of except a knack of "picking up" scraps of news. She obtained work in this line in a high class restaurant and is thus earning money enough to pay her way through college. She aims to be a teacher of Domestic Science.

Of course this way of getting through college means hard work, but college professors say that girls who work their way through college are, as a rule, more earnest than are the girls who play their way through college.

The Lesser Evil He was one of those fellows who thought he could do good by his hands. He was an opinion sharer by some of his friends.

"I don't see whether to go in for painting or poetry," he remarked one evening to the young lady he bore with his vain chatter. "If it is for painting if I were you," replied the girl. "Oh, you've seen some of my paintings?" "No, no!" she told him cruelly. But I've heard some of your poetry!"

"My Sweetheart's the Man in the Moon"

Drawn By NELL BRINKLEY

"... and we're going to be married quite soon." The girl with a dream sweetheart—and no real one must have hummed it at one time—but the girl who has a live one to paddle alongside of turns the funny old song around the other way and sings in the moonshine. "The Man in the Moon is My Sweetheart's the Man in the Moon is just about everywhere—and most particularly in that lovely old silver, that lovely bubble of romance that floats up and up, out of dark trees, into the sky—no look down into the windows and the hearts of the people who love and are beloved."

The moon spreads magic—and the commonplace, everyday face of the man a girl loves is then fully held there, for the face that sits on one eye in the world, spreads magic, too, and conjures dreams for the girl who turns up her eyes to his face and the moon's.

"I'm a lover, I'm a lover, brooding moon, the man's face in your circle is my lover's mirrored bright on your polished shield, to glimmer and smile down at me, the long ray of your moon-beams that strike a sparkle through my window pane, a his reaching hand, adoring—saying, 'Love?' ... and I laugh and say, 'HERE!'"

ETERNAL YOUTH

There is nothing we lose with such regret as youth. We are told that it is natural to grow old and perhaps it is, but you see the vital man or woman of middle age, just so hard at the prospect of surrendering the things of their prime. It is one of the tragedies of life that we must grow old and lose our mental and physical powers, with the inevitable prospect before us of going down to the grave when our tel of years is told.

Ever since the days of mythology humanity has been looking for a fountain of youth, something that would preserve us with all the hopes, with all the ambitions and with all the strength of early manhood and womanhood.

In the ancient days of Greece, perpetual youth was supposed to be an attribute of the Gods; the centuries did not put a single wrinkle in the matchless face of Venus, nor did Cupid ever grow up. Ponce de Leon, one of the first explorers who arrived at what he had found the fountain of youth in Florida; historians, however, had very little sympathy for the pathos of his quest and have laughed at him ever since. Almost everyone wants to retain their youth; but age, decay and disillusion have come to be inevitable that humanity in the past accepted its destiny as inevitable. Then, of course, we have the Scriptural dictum that our years shall be "three score and ten, and perhaps by reason of strength four score"; and we must admit that it has been pretty generally correct.

It will, therefore, come with a great surprise, perhaps with something of a shock, that science has recently made discoveries that show conclusively that there are means of arresting the wheel of age and that the day may be at hand when a man of eighty may be as full of vigor and strength as was born.

Away back about 1890, a French doctor named Brown Sequard declared that he had discovered the elixir of life. He had been a physiologist of the nervous system at Harvard university. After conducting many researches he injected into his body a serum made from the secretions of certain animals. The results were remarkable that the attention of the scientific world was attracted. Brown Sequard was, at that time, seventy-two years of age, and the news and rumors spread that he took on the semblance of a man in the early forties.

A close investigation was made of the serum and medical men, always inclined to be somewhat conservative, discredited it. The Harvard professor died in Paris at the age of seventy-seven years and his elixir was regarded as a joke.

Nevertheless, of recent years, scientists have come to the conclusion that he opened up a remarkable scientific truth.

A careful research has been conducted and science has come to the conclusion that with proper care there is no reason whatsoever that a human being's life may not be prolonged in its full vigor until considerably over one hundred years.

Some time in 1910, Dr. Carroll, a scientist of unquestioned reputation and conducting researches under the auspices of the Rockefeller Institute, took the fragment of the heart of a chicken which, in the natural course of events had not yet broken the egg shell and by means of injecting into it the serum taken from the living animals, has succeeded in keeping it alive until the present day. After many other experiments which have been conducted, this is probably the most noteworthy one, and scientific medical men are rapidly coming to the conclusion that senility and death can certainly be arrested and may, perhaps be prevented altogether.

A French physician named Doctor Varonoff, who was in charge of a French hospital during the war, had great experience in transplanting bones and organs from bodies newly dead, or living, into other living bodies. He carried on, at the same time, experiments with animals. The results he achieved were astonishing.

He took glands from young animals and placed them in old decrepit animals, practically doing of old age. The result was that in a few months these senile objects bloomed forth in health, strength and youth. He took the glands out again and the animals at once became old.

The same results have been produced with human beings who have become young when the glands from apes have been planted in their bodies.

There are, of course, many exaggerations in connection with such a subject, but nevertheless there is enough data in some of the medical scientific magazines to justify certain of their claims, and there is not the least doubt in the world that in view of the modern discoveries, old age can be considerably postponed.

For a number of years certain ailments and decays which usually come from old age, have been known to be cured, or at least ameliorated by the use of secretions from the glands of apes. There is one notable exception in that the person of very prominent man, for many years, was a notable figure in the province of Saskatchewan; but these remedies have been practiced almost entirely by some French physicians and the public have not been quite aware of their significance.

There is no question but that these discoveries must be taken seriously and it is a matter that will affect almost everybody.

Science has destroyed the ravages of enteric, typhus, yellow fever and diphtheria and if the investigators have again managed to discover a great physiological truth, it may have a most wonderful effect on humanity. It is, in any case, a most interesting subject.

BRITISH CANADA

Speaking at Calgary not very long ago, at a banquet in honor of the Imperial press delegates, R. B. Bennett, K.C., made an eloquent and vigorous speech, in which he said that one of the first duties of the citizen of this western country was an allegiance to British institutions and the installation of a British sentiment. He made some statements in his speech—and we have no reason to doubt them because Mr. Bennett is accurate in his pronouncements—in the province of Alberta there had been some anti-British feeling and that the quarters where it might be least expected.

In his peroration he said, "We found this country British and British we will leave it."

Every good citizen in Canada will applaud these sentiments. We owe everything to our British heritage—our freedom, our progress, our laws and our forms of government, and our very privileges to agitate for our rights. French Canada obtained from Great Britain a charter of liberties which in its scope, provided for a far greater measure of freedom than ever could have been obtained under the sovereignty of the country of their origin. We have had agitations and, of course, some things that have seemed unjust during the evolution stage, but through it all has run the thread of British justice and freedom, and we propose to maintain it in our country.

THE MENACE

There is no doubt whatsoever that the explosion which occurred in Wall Street, New York, a few days ago, resulting in the loss of many lives, was caused by mad revolutionaries who attempted to gratify their envious spite by attempting to wreck some of the financial institutions of New York.

Some high explosive, probably a bomb, was set just about the noon hour, in front of the Morgan banking place at the corner of Wall and Broad Streets. This is the heart of the financial district; the great American banking concerns are grouped all around and the sub-treasury, with its fine statue of Washington, is just across the street. The streets in this portion of New York are narrow canyons, hemmed by skyscrapers, office buildings and at the noon hour, when the multitude of employees pour out, it is one seething mass of humanity. No place could have been better selected for an outrage that would take a heavy toll of innocent human life.

This affair ought to bring home to those of us who are inclined to make light of Bolshevik activities on this side of the water, the menace which exists. There is no doubt that that large sums of money have been expended, both in the United States and Canada, to spread the pernicious doctrine of Bolshevism. There are always bare-brained enthusiasts who are taken up propaganda of this nature and to their ranks are attracted all kinds of cranks, many of whom have homicidal mania. Unscrupulous leaders of the organizations find these people willing tools; no enterprise is too mad; no outrage too cruel for them. These are the irresponsible individuals whose weakness is taken advantage of by propagandists who sit in safety and handle the funds, encouraging their dupes to perform the most wanton outrages, and sometimes see that they pay the penalty of their crimes, without compunction.

There are some people in a quashy public position, such as ministers, seeking notoriety and others who affect to see in Bolshevism some merit. This Wall Street outrage ought to bring these people to their senses. In Canada and the United States there are unquestionably some injustice in our financial social systems, but the country is big and wide and offers rewards for the expenditure of thrift, energy and enterprise to the nearest citizen. If a man cannot survive and make an adequate living for his family in the United States or Canada, there is something fundamentally wrong. We have no history of age-long wars, of blood and tears and of people being driven from Europe to revolt, and we want no Bolshevik or anarchistic movements. It is the duty of every good citizen to do his best to nip these pernicious doctrines in the bud.

CROP ESTIMATES

The Winnipeg Free Press has been in the habit of making crop estimates which have been pretty approximately correct. They have agricultural experts who are in the field most of the summer and are, therefore, in a position to judge. A few days ago the Free Press announced the results of the season's crop of the three prairie provinces as follows:

Wheat, two hundred and forty-eight million, seven hundred and forty-five thousand bushels.

Oats, three hundred and fifty-two million, one hundred and ninety thousand bushels.

Barley, forty-seven million, five hundred and sixty-four thousand bushels.

Flax, seven million, one hundred and fifty-two thousand bushels.

Rye, eight million, nine hundred and twelve thousand bushels.

Taking it by and large, this means a tremendous lot of money for Western Canada as a result of the season's agricultural activities. This year has been by no means a favorable one, and crops are more or less patchy, yet even under these conditions the above figures indicate something of the wealth that lies in our soil. It is within the memory of many of us who are not yet old, that the agricultural capacities of the west have been seriously questioned. The above figures, however, tell an eloquent tale of the progress of development and determination.

FAIRYLAND

Know ye the road to Fairyland?—
Tis far and far away;

Beyond the Gulf of Time lies it,
Distant and dim its hills arise;

Our childish hearts and childish eyes
Know where its valleys lie;

Know ye the woods of Fairyland
That woe shrouds deep dragons roam;

And many a cavern dwarf and gnome
Hold fearsome revelry;

Know ye the towers of Fairyland
That rise so white and fair?

Like a dream from their towers
And in their halls, where jewels gleam,

The Fairy Princesses lie adream
Amid her golden hair.

One Way to Beat the H.C.L.

If you want to beat the high cost of living by your needle, get busy with your needle, and surprise yourself by making lovely things at a low cost, compared with the prices charged in the big stores. Work up your own patterns, and I can tell you, they will find it easier to work on, and will be a lot of fun. I don't want a skirt that a lot of cheap

CANADIAN PICTURES OF THE WAR

A diligent little man in Pica-dilly summer clothes and with an unmistakable air gleam in his eyes, is again to be seen and heard in Canada wherever artists are to be found. He is the Canadian National, Kosody topped the list in attendance records. Almost all the artists of the war have seen Kosody as pictures as heard of him. He is the Canadian war artist, a second Kosody.

Along comes Mr. Kosody again, this time with a still vast acreage of Canada war canvases all on route to their final interim in the Ottawa museum.

The third lot, consisting of two hundred works, is the last—for Kosody is again to be seen. There must be at least one thousand more.

Save your money for the Memorial Drive October 20 to 23. Gleichen district must go "over the top" strong on those days—do your "bit".

One week from next Saturday the first Gleichen School Fair is to be held and it is up to every man and woman in this district to attend and encourage the boys and girls. Do your part.

We would ask all our advertisers to favor us by sending in their copy for ad. changes on Saturday of this week as we want to leave next Wednesday to attend a convention the Alberta Division of the Canadian Press Association to be held in Calgary.

The Council has completed some good and very necessary work in having the sidewalks and street crossings repaired. Incidentally The Call's chicken-feed harvest was ruined. We were reaping about a bushel every time a load passed over this crossing—someone is ever taking the joy out of life.

Five hundred years before the Battle of Jutland the Parliament of England resolved:—

"The Navy is the chief support of the wealth, the business, and the whole prosperity of the land".

The Alberta Division of the Navy League of Canada have set apart Oct. 18th to 25th for a special appeal in the interests of the Navy League and their work for Sailors and the boys of our country. Gleichen district has been asked to raise $100, which is a very small amount considering the work done by the Navy League during the past few years and should be easily made double.

The nature of the work is such that it appeals to every man, woman and child. The League has accomplished a wonderful work in caring for the orphans of the Merchant Marine men who were killed during the war; their institutes for Seamen in Canada and overseas.

A bulletin sent out from the Prohibition Headquarters at Edmonton reads:

"Urban registration has been the big event of the past week. The reports, however, reaching us from all centres where such has been held indicate that the registration has been light. This may be due to the novelty of the feature of our new Franchise Act, to the indifference on the part of many electors, to lack of organization for getting citizens aroused and to the registration both or to the routed conviction that many seem to have that they do not need to register as they have voted before. Whatever be the cause it is to be deplored that there is not likely to be a full expression of opinion upon the great issue before us on the part of the electors of our cities and larger towns. A full rural vote must now be registered by Oct. 5 or we will have an indecisive victory. Should such result prohibitionists will have none to blame but themselves as the organized opposition in the present campaign is a negligible quantity."

Logically the main difficulty in interesting the voters is put down to the lack of information sent out from the Headquarters. True, many bulletins have been sent out, but their new value has been very small other than telling how busy the workers were about Edmonton, and practically giving no information of the issue to be voted upon. However, Mrs. McKinney's clear-out addresses Sunday has done much to enlighten the voters, who should now be better able to decide on the question for themselves.

Irrigation makes the farmer independent of rainfall, and insures good crops, not occasionally, but every year.

Irrigation makes possible the cultivation of alfalfa, the king of fodders, which assures good returns in dairying and mixed farming.

Irrigation means intensive farming and close settlement, with all the advantages of a densely populated agricultural community.

Irrigation is the Canadian Pacific Railway irrigation block is no longer an experiment, the years that it has been tried having absolutely demonstrated its success wherever intelligently applied.

You can buy irrigated land from the Canadian Pacific Railway at prices averaging $60 an acre, with twenty years to pay and the privilege of a loan of $2,000 for improvements; 6 per cent. interest; no principal after the first payment until the end of the fourth year; reduced interest if settlement conditions complied with, and no water rental for the first year. Contracts can be paid off before maturity if desired.

This is the most liberal offer of irrigated farm land on record. For full particulars apply to "Those of you who were at the exhibition grounds on that Tuesday morning with your rakes and hammers know well that it means to serve under the leadership of Chris Bartch.

This is just another evidence of the staunchness of the members of the Board of Trade. You committed yourselves at a prior meeting that you would cooperate with the Stampede Committee and clean the grounds when called upon, and while you only had a few score of men, you were able to do most disagreeable work showed your mettle by turning out when asked."

"To show you the seriousness that very member of this board entered into this affair, I will quote just one instance. After dark the night before our guests were to arrive, it was found that there was one place in the road in the route, some five miles from town, that had not been repaired, and W. W. Brown immediately set out with pick and shovel to make the necessary repairs. (Applause.)

title "Domition" also came from it.
"It is said," says "Canada," "that when the great project of confederation was being considered, those who opposed in the deliberations were sometimes called 'domition' for 'domination' and 'domition' was the name Canada was to be called a 'Kingdom', a 'Commonwealth', or what other name.
While they remained in this perplexity, one of the delegates, Sir Leonard Tilley, subsequently finance minister under Sir John A. Macdonald, and later on lieutenant-governor of New Brunswick, came across the verse in the Psalm when reading the moral chapter in the Bible, one morning in his room at the Hotel St.

Louis. "There," he said to himself, "is the name for Canada—'Domition', which extends from sea to sea, and from the river St. Lawrence to the edge of the earth." When he brought his idea before his colleagues at their meeting in the old parliament house in Quebec the title at once appeared to all of them.

TALES OF OUR COUNTRY

SOME CHRONICLES OF THE DAYS OF THE WAR PARTY AND THE BUFFALO—STORIES TOLD AROUND THE FIRES OF THE HUNTING CAMPS OF BYGONE DAYS

The R.N.W.M.P. In The Great North West

SETTLING THE NORTH WEST—THE CRIME BELT—THE BULLOCK TRAGEDY—THE WONDERFUL WORK OF THE POLICE—THE WEST MADE SAFE.

The early days of the twentieth century saw a large influx of new settlers to the northwest. One of the first regions to be extensively settled was the district now known as the North West. It was opened up by the construction of the Calgary and Edmonton roads which lay between the Bow River and the Saskatchewan. This was a rich and fertile territory and soon attracted a large emigration from the south. The first American settlers who came in were not from the south but from Iowa and the middle west to settle the Saskatchewan valley and also into the region in question. The country was still a frontier and attracted many different characters who were unfamiliar with British justice and British institutions. Many of these people believed that the same latitude would be allowed them, to commit lawless offences as was permitted in the unorganized portions of the United States. Under such conditions still obtained. They soon, however, by means of the activities of the North West Mounted Police, learned their limitations and the region became a law-abiding as any other portion of Canada.

The Crime Belt

During the time some of these newcomers were getting their education several affairs occurred which indicated the nature of the strong hand of justice. It was this perhaps that led the late Percy Nolan to name the district "The Crime Belt."

The Bullock Family

There was a family named Bullock operating a small farm about midway between Calgary and Edmonton. They were fairly decent hard-working people, and had come from one of the western states, their great-grandfather had been the British general of that name and they had inherited themselves on their connection.

The Prodigal

There was a son in the family, however, who had been a bad boy, a tax-exempt wanderer and a vagabond and he had never been with his family in Canada. He fled from construction camp to construction camp in the western states only working long enough to get enough money to enable him to engage in some dissipation. He had made friends with a workman and had been offered to beat the regular hanger-on journey. Arrived in the Calgary and the Calgary regular hanger-on train for the nearest point to the farm. When they arrived there they set out to reach the place in a day. The young Bullock arrived at his parents' home where he received every manifestation of welcome. He appeared to be in possession of money and told stories of how things had been prospering with him. He was quite generous with his funds and the remains of a dead body of his family. After a visit extending for some time he said his farewells and returned to the States.

A Dead Body

Shortly after his departure, some children, I think, who were looking for cows discovered in a ditch the remains of a dead body. The R.N.W.M.P. investigated, a post mortem was held, and the remains were found to be those of a man who had been killed. The force was assigned to investigate; and slowly and carefully a chain of circumstantial evidence was built up. It was discovered that the dead man had been Bullock's companion and the evidence pointed to the fact that Bullock had been endeavoring to argue to the farm. A warrant was issued for the murderer, but he seemed to have disappeared from the face of the earth. The activities of the North West Mounted Police, learned their limitations and the region became a law-abiding as any other portion of Canada.

Mrs. McKinney Well Received in Gleichen

The Opera House was well filled with people Sunday evening to hear Mrs. McKinney discuss the liquor question, who gave her an excellent hearing.

The meeting was opened by Rev.
Mr. Matheson who asked for a number of sacred songs by the choir and audience.

Mayor Toddhouse after a few remarks introduced Mrs. McKinney, who first offered congratulations on the hearty singing.

She started her address by stating the temperance question was today a national question. One which every nation in the world was discussing and seriously considering.

The object of the present campaign was a large order, being no less than the total destruction of the liquor traffic, which she claimed statute contained in that it degraded man and woman.

The speaker dealt with the subject along lines of economy, business and revenue.

In business she said there were losses through inefficient workmanship in every line, with the result that we all contribute in paying higher prices for everything. Also the people bore the cost of maintaining asylums and other institutions filled by a large percentage of people who drank alcohol. She also argued that there was a loss to the country and not a revenue.

The speaker had some fun at the claim of custom and appetite, saying alcohol made the heart faster, men talk faster, and they drink it to make things warm and cool, and refuted the claim it made men insensible to pain. She wanted all to remember that an appetite for strong drink is acquired, not inherited.

Mrs. McKinney went to some length in describing the different laws that had been tried in Canada dealing with the drink question.

She said that when the Dominion Government was asked to allow Alberta prohibition the reply was to first use all the power given to Alberta to enact liquor laws, which was done in the last referendum.
Having completed the Dominion Government granted further power, briefly to stop the shipment of liquor into Alberta for beverage purposes, and now the people were being asked to vote on this question.

She dealt with the handling of liquor by the medical profession and said the act to be voted upon does not intax to the imposition of any prohibitory liquor for sacramental, medical, manufacturing or commercial purposes.

Mrs. McKinney said the Legislature had promised to enforce their law when they had a mandate from the people. And said, "Of course, they will enforce the law", and we will see who enforces the law."

The speaker also fully explained the qualifications necessary to vote and how to get each name on the voters' list. Perhaps the only additional information from that given in these columns last issue was that the leasing of the writ was dated April 20th last, and, therefore, all voters must have resided in the electoral district in which they seek to vote two months prior to that date.

In concluding Mrs. McKinney urged every person to vote whether they favored this referendum or not.
